

ABSTRACT

- [49] The present invention provides a system and method for docking a camera. Briefly described, one embodiment is a method comprising coupling a camera to a docking station platform and rotating the camera about an axis of rotation, the rotation permitted by the docking station platform configured to couple to a docking station base such that the docking station platform may be rotated about the axis of rotation.